

Visual	Dialogue
A young boy is sitting on the floor in his room reading a dictionary. He sees the word 'Act' and scratches his head. He has a puzzled expression and question marks appear above his head.	Boy [thinking]: I don't understand what this word means. It's hard for me to understand English.
The boy gives two thumbs up and a lightbulb appears above his head.	Boy [thinking]: I understand the word now!
